

Our reality...

Entry was refused to some people because of their colours,
LGBT community is hated because of homophobic rumours,
We raised the flags and created Black Lives Matter, but,
We live in a world where xenophobia exists.

In these conflicts, the weakest are subjects to the strongest,
Fighting for women rights is like a quest,
We're against inequality and we hate seeing people suffer, but,
We live in a world where inequity persists.

It's my duty and my turn to raise my voice,
To act and fight instead of watching and not caring,
To gather when everyone is dispersing.

Our world changed, thanks to people's choice,
That were brave enough to break the rules in different places,
And now, the world where we live still changes.
